So for this document I have added event handling for capturing user input. I will say that on my end I was having some trouble with having a thank you message show after pressing submit which is similar to my previous issue in the last submission. But now since we are making edits to it i worked on it. I am looking at my line of code: Thank you for the sake of making the thank you message not show when the webpage is opened and then after clicking submit then the message shows. I have had it work and then not. I'm not sure of this error. This was fun though. And through my development process for this submission I compared my code with the previous submission and what we worked on for javascript in the previous lecture. I did find some typos so that helped with improving my syntax.
